

Winter Birds of the Fox River: How Are They Doing? What Are We Seeing?

Bob and Kathy Andrini, Kane County Audubon

What wonders await us if we take time to brave winters cold to look for birds!

Bob and Kathy Andrini are lifelong teachers and share a keen interest in nature and the environment. To our good fortune, they also have a passion for birds. Join us to hear Bob and Kathy talk about birds they have seen in the Fox Valley this winter and share their observations about the status of birds in general. Bob is past president of Kane County Audubon, a local chapter of Illinois Audubon, and a committed volunteer with the Field Museum and elsewhere. He and Kathy are proud recipients of the Excellence in Conservation Education award from the Kane-DuPage Soil and Water Conservation District. We look forward to hearing them and thank them for sharing their expertise!

February 26 – Kendall County Historic Courthouse, 110 Madison Street, Yorkville, IL

7:00-8:00 p.m.

Organized by The Conservation Foundation and the Kendall County Forest Preserve District